Chapter 1 by Shane Collins

He looked up at the computer screen "Starting in 3 2 1" the numbers shined brightly at him, his time had come, this would be what he prepared for...

Chapter 2 by intellikat

"Download Beginning..." said the computer screen, and the man pursed his lips in anticipation.

Stationed in Skolkursk, New Smogaria, the man had little access to entertainment. Aside from one dockside bar and the chicken fights on a Saturday night, the small port town had little to offer. The man had been waiting all winter for the release of "Swords of Chance: Season Three", and now it was well within reach.

"Having Trouble Downloading? Test Your Internet Connection by Clicking Here," mocked the small pop-up and the man cursed. The download bar was now hung up at three percent. Internet in Skolkursk was about as fast as the ice flows in January, which is to say you might be able to access Yahoo's search engine... on a good day... within the time it takes to boil an egg.

The man stood and looked out the window. There had to be a better way to download the season. And then it came to him. The internet connection at the base was plenty stable. He could go in, say he he has just picking up some paperwork to work on over the weekend, and have the episodes downloaded probably in the time it took to grab a coffee and have a quick chat with the other intelligence officers in the break room.
